William H. Bagley, Of Westerly

Usged as Government Agent to Upbuild Trade with South America-Boston Paper Robs Turkey King of Honors-Death of William A. Langworthy in Florida-Havens Children Spirited Away.

The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers is urging the appointment of William H. Bagley of Westerly as commercial agent of the department of commerce and labor of the United States government, and in the upbuilding of trade between the United States and South American countries. Dr. C. H. J. Woodbury, secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers' association, has arrived in Washington to confer with Socretary Nagel in regard to the appointment of Mr. Bagley to succeed W. A. Graham Clark, who recently resigned to become textile expert on the tariff board. Dr. Woodbury declares that Mr. Bagley is peculiarly fitted for the appointment by reason of his wide experience in the South American republics, where he was educated, and because of his excellent command of the varied Spanish dialects spoken in South American republics, where he was educated, and because of his excellent command of the varied Spanish dialects spoken in South American republics, where he was educated, and because of his excellent command of the varied Spanish dialects spoken in South American republics, where he was educated, and because of his excellent command of the varied Spanish dialects spoken in South American republics, where he was educated and because of his excellent command of the varied Spanish dialects spoken in South American republics, where he was educated in Spanish. Mr. Bagley's candidacy for the place is not at his own instance, but at the earnest request of textile men acquainted with his unusual fitness for the place.

The activity of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers toward securing Mr. Bagley's appointment is another step in the carrying out of a plan formulated at a recent conference of textile manufacturers at which it was determined that the South American field, said to possess great possibilities for American trade, should be canvassed with the end of building up the commerce between the United States and southern counters to was determined to a plan formulated of the first Seventh Day Baptist church

South American field, said to possess great possibilities for American trade, should be canvassed with the end of building up the commerce between the United States and southern counties. The appointment of an agent of Mr. Bagley's capabilities, it is said by manufacturers, would be an important step toward the development of commerce with the southern continent of the western hemisphere.

Mr. Bagley was born in Westerly, but when young went with his father. A Rhode Island mill man, to Chili, where the elder Bagley established and equipped the first cotton mill, and remained in Chili for eight years. He was educated in Chili and Peru, and received additional schooling on his return to the United States.

Mr. Bagley then learned the woolen and cotton manufacturing, and for some time was connected with the old Baboock & Moss mill in Westerly. Later he served as agent and superintendent of the Middlesex mills at Lowell, and agent of Cocheon mills at Dover, N. H. He did valueble work for the Textile school at Lowell while engaged in mill supervision in that city. He returned to Westerly with his family about two years ago, and recides in the Avondale section.

There seems to be persistent effort on the part of certain turkey dealers to rob Horace Vose of the credit of furnishing the turkey for the Thanksgiving presidential dinner, which is ansoying to the Turkey King, especially as he has the autograph letter of every president from Grant to Taft as decumentary evidence in substantiation of his claim. The object of these dealers is to gain prestige for their stock, by claiming them to be the best in the land, the kind that is served at the president's feast at Thanksgiving. As a matter of fact, these birds are presented by Mr. Vose, reared under his supervision, and dressed, prepared and shipped to the president by him personally.

A Boston newspaper in its report of the close of the poultry show in that city made this reference: "James E. Lord of Stonington, Conn., owner of
